Sam Stewart, of Medicine Lodge, sold four car loads of butcher cattle last evening, and he is now a boomer for the Wighthia market. Last might, when he said the table at the Royal restaurant with a big poster-house steak in front of nim and opsters on the side, he became confidential and remarked to the market reporter for the Eagle: "Now, just to be housest, I had no idea that the estile market here had assumed such proportions that It has. I had been reading the Eagle and concluded to stop here and aster and feed anyhow, but I had no idea that they would hay such eattle as mire, but when I priced them they were sold quicker than stat.
